CHARACTERS

ROGER An older southern gentleman, kindly but proper, and self-appointed welcoming committee to those who cross over the hedge.

BILLY A younger southern male who could be either an old boy or a young adult depending on how the director wants to spin the story.

HANK An older southern gentleman, wistfully recognizing that he had no idea what he gave up when he agreed to act like an adult.

Note: If desired, genders can be switched. It is recommended that if a switch is made, all genders be switched.

SETTING

A field with a hedge running down the middle of it.

TIME

Any time in the 20th century or later.

SCENE

(The stage is divided by a low hedge. On one side – the adult side – stands Roger, an older southern gentleman, casually dressed. On the other side – the child side – enters Billy, also casually dressed.)

ROGER

Mornin' Billy!

BILLY

Mornin' Mr. Eisley!

ROGER

Billy, I told ya' you can call me Roger.

BILLY

I know, Mr. Eisley.

ROGER

So what brings ya' roun' t'day?

BILLY

Nothin', sir.

ROGER

Nothin'.

(Billy shrugs. After a moment, Roger motions that Billy can come over to his side of the hedge. Billy considers it, but then shakes his head.)

I see.

BILLY

Don't mean no disrespect, mister—

ROGER

None taken, Billy. None taken.

BILLY

It's just that ya' always offer, and I never... (He shrugs.)

Not yet, anyhow.	ROGER
You really think	BILLY
	(Roger nods knowingly.)
I ain't so sure.
	(Roger shrugs.)
How's it that you're so sure?
Everybody comes over event	ROGER ually, Billy.
Everybody?	BILLY
Well, just about.	ROGER
Why's that?	BILLY
It's easier over here.	ROGER
Seems borin' to me.	BILLY
	(Roger shrugs.)
You don't look none too happ	py, neither.
I do alright.	ROGER
I don't think I would.	BILLY

	ROGER
S'that so?
That's right, Mr. Eisley.	BILLY
ROGER Can't help but notice this is the fourth day in a row I seen you walkin' by the hedge
(Billy S	shrugs.)
What you scared of, son?
(Billy)	shrugs again.)
Must be somethin'.
I ain't scared. Just I like it over he	BILLY ere.
ROGER Most your friends already come over, Billy.
I know.	BILLY
ROGER Must be getting' mighty lonely over there.
I'm alright.	BILLY
Uh huh.	ROGER
I am.	BILLY
Didn't say nothin'. Just said uh huh	ROGER .
Well, I am.	BILLY

Alright.	ROGER
	The two stand in silence for a while, looking at each ther.)
Let me ask you somethin', Billy.
What's that?	BILLY
Whatcha holdin' onto over ther	ROGER e? Really.
(I	Billy just looks at Roger, guarded.)
You know you can't stay young forever.
Watch me.	BILLY
You wait too long, well	ROGER
Well what?	BILLY
You fall behind.	ROGER
BILLY What's so bad 'bout that? Meybe I don't wanna race ahead.
S'that so?	ROGER
What's so great about bein' ahe	BILLY ead anyways?
Lot's of things. Money	ROGER
Money ain't so great.	BILLY

OVER THE HEDGE by Jeff Dunne

Power	ROGER
Power?	BILLY
Power t'make things the way you v	ROGER vant 'em.
I can do that now.	BILLY
S'that so?	ROGER
Yeah.	BILLY
An' how do you do that?	ROGER
Cuz I got magic.	BILLY
Ain't no such thing as magic, Billy	ROGER . You should know that by now.
Is too.	BILLY
(Roge	er shakes his head.)
You just don't 'member it.
You just foolin' yerself, son. It ain	ROGER 't real. Real power now that's different.
(Billy	y's eyes narrow.)
Power's me bein' able to lock you up, and you ain't able to do nothin' 'bout it
(Billy	y just stares at Roger.)

BILLY Mystery. Adventure. Fairies. Rainbows—
ROGER I got rainbows.
BILLY No you don't, Mr. Eisley. All you got is colors.
ROGER That's what rainbows are, son. Just colors.
BILLY No, they ain't. You think you got power, but you don't. You so concerned about controllin' everybody and everything, but you lost control o' yourself. It's like I said you ain't got no rainbows. Not no more and you don't even know it.
ROGER Oh, Billy. You just foolin' yourself.
BILLY Meybe. Or meybe y'all just foolin' yourselves.
ROGER So you just gonna stay over there forever, then
BILLY Don't see why not.
ROGER And when they come to take you away?
BILLY Take me 'way where?
ROGER Someplace for the loonies who frolic around, pretendin' they see fairies.
BILLY I don't frolic.

ROGER (CONT)

What you got over there compares to that?

OVER THE HEDGE by Jeff Dunne

ROGER

No. No, you don't. Not yet, anyway.

(Roger stares at Billy hard.)

Come on, son. Come over the hedge.

(Billy considers it, his face a scowl. Suddenly offstage on Billy's side comes the sound of children laughing. Billy turns to look in that direction, and smiles at what he sees.)

BILLY

Thank you kindly, Mr. Eisley, but... the answer's still no.

ROGER

There ain't no Neverland, Billy. No Peter Pan, no Tinkerbell. Them's just stories.

BILLY

I like stories. No sir, I'll stay on this side a while longer.

ROGER

It ain't right, Billy.

BILLY

Who's to say—

ROGER

(Suddenly angry...) It... ain't... right. William.

BILLY

Name's Billy. And I'll be stayin' on this side, if you don't mind, Mr. Eisley.

(Billy backs up, and exits. As he's leaving, Hank enters from the adult side of the hedge.)

HANK

That Billy?

ROGER Was.
(Hank looks longingly at the other side of the hedge. He takes a step towards it, but Roger puts a hand on hi shoulder.)
What you think your doin', Hank?
HANK I just
ROGER You can't go there.
I I mean
ROGER Hank, put your head on straight. What's the matter with you?
HANK Look at it over there.
ROGER I look every day. Ain't nothin' but foolish games b'yond that there hedge.
(We can hear the sounds of children laughing from the child side. Hank watches, and a wistful, remorseful, sad smile comes to his face.)
HANK You remember?
(Roger looks at Hank, uncomprehending.)
Remember laughin' like that?
ROGER

Go home, Hank. You're drunk.

I ain't.	HANK
Yes you are.	ROGER
Why don't we go back there? Back	HANK to the other side?
What's the matter with you? You go	ROGER one senile or somethin'?
I just	HANK
What you think Debra's gonna say i	ROGER f you cross back over there? Hmm?
I just	HANK
ROGER Go home, Hank. Put your head on straight an' go home.
(Billy watch	comes back on stage, but stays near the edge, ing.)
I just	HANK
ROGER I seen your lawn, Hank. Weeds croppin' up. Neighbors are talkin'. looks at Billy, who returns the look with a assionate sadness.)
Hank.
Yeah. Yeah.	HANK
Give Debra my regards.	ROGER

OVER THE HEDGE by Jeff Dunne

(Hank takes a last long look over at Billy, then turns around and starts to exit.)

HANK

Yeah.

(Hank exits. Billy enters and partway to Roger.)

ROGER

Come back, I see.

(Billy nods thoughtfully.)

Realized there really ain't no choice, didn't ya'?

(Roger and Billy look at each other for a long time. There's no hatred or negativity, but a high tension. Finally...)

It ain't about if, Billy, just a matter of when.

(There is another short moment of silence.)

Ain't no choice.

(Billy shakes his head, and extends a hand. Roger takes it.)

BILLY

There's always a choice, Mr. Eisley.

(Billy releases Roger's hand and starts to walk away. Just before exiting, he turns back.)

You're welcome back any time, ya' know. Ain't never too late.

(They share a final look, and then Roger shakes his head in disappointment. Billy exits. Roger stares at him, and a moment later the sound of children laughing can be heard again from the child side. Doubt rises into Roger's face as he finds himself tempted. Then suddenly he turns away and strides off on the adult side. Lights out.)
